KNOWLAND IS CONFIDENT

Record Crowd Expected at KennywoodPark

City Virtually Deserted for Annual Community Picnic Day

Motorcades of buses and private cars took a large throng of Monessen residents to the annual Community Picnic at Kennywood Park today.

The city is virtually deserted as public offices and business establishments closed their doors to permit employes to attend the yearly outing. Playgrounds also are closed for the day.

Fred C. Stockus, general chairman, predicted a banner crowd of local picnickers will file into the huge amusement park.

While many persons will spend all day at Kennywood, others are planning to be there late this afternoon or early this evening. Many plan to have family dinners at the park.

Before the first bus left at 9:30 this morning from Fourth St. and Donner Ave., most of the 30,000 amusement tickets placed on sale here several weeks ago had been purchased, indicating a large crowd will be on hand.

Busy Schedule

The Chamber's picnic committee and officials of the Monessen Recreation Department have outlined a busy schedule for today, starting with a lollipop hunt at 10 a. m. The action will continue until the day's second free acrobatic act on the Lagoon stage at 9:30 p. m.

Picnickers needn't worry if the weatherman slips up for the day because Kennywood has shelters in abundance. There are plenty of dining pavilions, along with a large dining room with a cafeteria.

The weather prediction calls for a warm and slightly humid day with the possibility of scattered showers.

Stockus said Community Picnic Day in Monessen affords the chance for family reunions. He stated that many former residents have informed the committee they intend to be at Kennywood to renew old acquaintances.

Buses will begin the return trip to Monessen at 7 p. m. The last bus will leave at 10:45 p. m.

Two Branded As 'Communist-Front' Groups

WASHINGTON, July 29 (UP)—The Civil Rights Congress and the American Peace Crusade were branded today as "Communist-front" organizations and ordered to register with the attorney general.

In unanimous decisions, the Subversive Activities Control Board said the two groups are under "direct control" of the Communist party.

The five-man board said that since the Congress was set up in April 1956, its policies "have been identical to those of the Communist party."

It said that the Crusade, while "ostensibly promoting" peace in the world, "in fact promotes and advances the positions and programs of the Communist party."

Both groups were expected to appeal the decision to the U. S. Court of Appeals. They have 60 days in which to do so.

A board ruling last December which found the Communist party in the United States a "Communist action" group is now pending before the Appeals Court.

The original 1953 board decision that the Communist party was a Red action group reached the Supreme Court but was returned because of the turnabout testimony of government witness Harvey Matusow.

The case now being appealed is a reaffirmation of the original finding without the disputed testimony.

Attorney General Herbert Brownell Jr. has recommended board action against 24 groups since 1953 including the Communist party. Of these, 21 involved alleged Communist front groups.

'Gas War' Moves Into Other Areas In the District

A "gas war" that started in Monessen last week today spread into Belle Vernon and Rostraver Twp.

Prices tumbled six cents a gallon on motor gasoline, reducing the price to 23.9 cents to compete with the Monessen level.

The tab on high-test was also dropped to prices ranging from 27.9 to 31.9 cents per gallon depending on the grade.

In Monessen, the "gas war" raged on with no apparent end in sight. Reportedly the major oil companies have promised to make up part of the losses to service station proprietors in the form of rebates.

As yet, both Charleroi and Donora have escaped the "gas war." Prices on most motor gasoline in both communities remained at 29.9 cents per gallon.

"We're hoping to avoid the gas war," commented one service station proprietor in Charleroi.

Postal Employes Working Today

Employes at Monessen Post Office have voted to work today instead of having the day off to attend the annual Community Picnic at Kennywood Park.

In previous years, the Post Office closed down for the outing. This year, however, employes, rather than have the day off charged to their vacations or other leaves, will work.

Most of them said they will attend the picnic after their regular work period today.

National Steel Corp. Sales, Income Down

PITTSBURGH, July 29 (UP)—National Steel Corp. today reported slackened sales and earnings for the first six months of 1957.

Thomas E. Milsop, president of the nation's fifth largest steelmaker, said earnings for the first half of the year amounted to $26,108,847 or $3.52 a share compared with net earnings of $28,961,410 or $3.92 a share for the first six months of the previous year.

MATTER OF OPINION — Princess Margaret of Britain, wearing an off-the-shoulder dress, arrives at the White City Stadium, London, to attend the Royal International Horse Show. A newspaper columnist delicately hinted recently that the appetite of the Princess for fattening foods is either too big or the dresses she wears are too smal.

Troop Travel Fight Continues In the House

WASHINGTON, July 29 (UP)—The House Commerce Committee decided to take a second look today at legislation which supporters claim would save the government 100 million dollars a year in troop transportation costs.

The decision forced the House to delay a vote on the measure until at least tomorrow. It was designed to overturn a federal court ruling that railroads have competed illegally against nonscheduled airlines for the multimillion dollar troop transportation business.

The airlines won a major victory early this month when Federal Judge Joseph C. McGarraghy ruled that the railroads had violated anti-trust laws in bidding for troop transportation. He ordered the railroads to revamp their bidding practices.

The House committee reacted last Thursday by recommending legislation to overturn the ruling. Committee Chairman Oren Harris (D-Ark) said the Defense Department estimated that the ruling would cost it 100 million dollars in troop transportation costs this year alone.

But shortly before the legislation was scheduled to come up for House debate today, the committee agreed to hold a closed-door meeting to discuss the measure.

The four non-scheduled airlines involved in the case had denounced the measure as an "audacious" attempt by the railroads to "get off the hook of illegality."

Rail Removal Schedule Is Falling Behind

The removal of abandoned street car rails on Donner Ave. in Monessen has fallen behind schedule because of "technical reasons," it was reported today.

In six days, workers have been able to remove only two blocks of rail. Originally it was planned to remove a block a day.

The project is under contract to the Charleroi Iron Co. A special oxygen-fed cutting machine is being employed.

A company spokesman said the slow start was due to "technical difficulties." He indicated that the operation will be speeded up soon.

As the rails are removed, workmen are filling in the cracked pavement with blacktop.

The rail-removal will set the stage for a complete black-topping job by the state on Donner Ave. from Oneida St. to 12th St. That project will begin as soon as the rails are taken up.

An experimental parking ban on the north side of Donner Ave. will go into effect between Fourth and Sixth streets once the rails are removed in that area. The ban will be on a 90-day trial basis.

Mexico City Death Toll at 55; More Shocks Are Reported

MEXICO CITY, July 29 (UP) — Aftershocks from yesterday's devastating earthquake rocked this stricken city today and threatened to bring down damaged buildings on the heads of rescue workers still digging out victims.

The official death toll stood at 55, with 40 dead in Mexico City alone. Another 15 persons were known dead in the quake belt that spread over 154,000 square miles. The toll of injured rose to 657 in Mexico City.

The casualty figures were incomplete. There were unconfirmed reports of another seven dead in Ixmiquilpan in Hidalgo state.

A check by the U. S. State Department showed all Americans safe. The only American casualty was listed as Mrs. Sarah Dorfman of Brooklyn, N.Y., who suffered arm cuts from flying glass.

Tourists Head Home

But the quakes sent many tourists scurrying for home. An estimated 10 per cent of all holidaying Americans left the country by plane, train and car.

The aftershocks today were minor compared with the estimated 30 violent jolts that hit South Central Mexico yesterday with a maximum force of 10 on the Richter scale. But the new shocks were heavy enough to threaten to topple weakened buildings.

(Another severe quake was reported to have occurred somewhere near the Chilean-Bolivian border today. Instruments at Fordham and Columbia universities in New York recorded a tremor with an intensity of 7 on the Richter magnitude scale of 10.)

Two large office buildings were ordered vacated in Mexico City lest they come crashing down on their occupants. One was the 13-story Mariscala building which houses Mexico's price-fixing agency. The other was a 13-story building at the corner of Aquiles Serdan and Pensador Mexicano Streets.

Troops Prevent Looting

President Adolfo Ruiz Cortines, who sent soldiers in to keep order and prevent looting, toured the hardest-hit areas with Mexico City Mayor Ernest Uruchurtu.

Worst disaster scene was a new five-story apartment building housing 12 families which collapsed in a cloud of plaster dust early Sunday moring when the first shocks occurred. At least 14 bodies were removed.

One woman victim was dug out alive—saved by two mattresses that cushioned her from falling masonry and steel beams.

Outside Mexico City, in a vast area extending from Monterrey in the north to the Isthmus of Tehuantepec in the South, more damage and more casualties were reported.

Nine of the known dead were in Chilpancingo, capital of Guerrero state 125 miles southwest of Mexico City. Four were known dead in the plush pacific resort town of Acapulco. Yolotla and Huamustitlan, also in Guerrero state, reported one dead apiece.

The worst death report, which came at the height of the quake, turned out to be false. Officials said a report that 72 persons had died in Mochoacan state in quake-caused floods was "inaccurate." They said there were no deaths in the state.

Local Persons In Mexico City

Two Monessen persons attending schools in Mexico City, Mexico, have escaped injury in the earthquake that hit the city Sunday, according to word received here last night. They are: Patty Pallone, older daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Joseph Pallone, and Joseph Young, son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Young, Sr. Miss Pallone, whose father is superintendent of local public schools, is studying Spanish, and Young, medicine.

Pricedale Pony Wins Ribbons At South Park

A six-year-old black Gelding pony, owned by a Pricedale man, won an award in the Pittsburgh Horse Show, Saturday afternoon at South Park.

The pony, which is only 41 inches tall, was ridden by David McKeever, seven, son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert McKeever, of Perryopolis, R. D., formerly of Monessen.

It was the youthful rider's second appearance in a public show. Last week he rode the pony in the Fayette County show and copped two ribbons.

Saturday's show was sponsored by the South Park Matinee Club as the annual benefit for Childrens Hospital, Pittsburgh.

The local entry was in the Western Division for ponies 48 inches tall or under. It was awarded a blue ribbon, a cash award and a trophy donated by Ernest Nappi.

David attired in full western regalia made by his mother, showed his pony in a walk, trot and in loose rein.

Steel Activity Better Than Last Month

NEW YORK, July 29 (UP)—Steel making activity this week is scheduled at the best level in a month, according to the weekly report of American Iron & Steel Institute.

Mills are scheduling production at 82.2 per cent of capacity to yield 2,103,000 net tons, the weekly production report showed.

This would compare with an actual rate of 79.4 per cent and 2,033,000-ton output achieved last week, considerably lower than estimates which had called for an 81.2 per cent operating rate and 2,079,000-ton yield.

A month ago the industry operated at 78.5 per cent for 2,009,000 tons and a year ago, with the prolonged steel strike in progress, operations were at only 16.9 per cent for 415,000 tons.

The production index, based on a 1947,1949 average as 100, was estimated this week at 130.9 per cent, compared with 126.6 last week, 125.1 a month ago and 25.8 a year ago.

Adm. William Halsey

Admiral Halsey, Naval Great, Is Hospital Patient

NEW YORK, July 29 (UP)—Fleet Adm. William F. (Bull) Halsey, 74, hero of one of the greatest naval victories in American history, was taken to a hospital today suffering from a cerebral hemorrhage that struck him during an island vacation.

The World War II naval tactician who scored a brilliant victory in the Marshall and Gilbert Island campaigns in 1942, was stricken at 2 p.m. yesterday on Fisher's Island, off the north shore of Long Island.

He was flown to his New York home and taken to Doctor's Hospital today. A naval public relations officer said his condition was "indefinite."

Halsey's aide, Lt. Cmdr. George Beck, accompanied the admiral to the hospital. He said Halsey's speech had been affected by a slight paralysis but his limbs were not affected.

"It will take about 24 hours to determine the extent and seriousness of the attack," Beck said.

Friends said Halsey went to his summer cottage to rest after tiring activities in behalf of a campaign to save the aircraft carrier Enterprise as a floating monument to the Navy men who beat back the Japanese in World War II.

Halsey retired as commander of the Third Fleet in 1945, saying he was a tired old man.

Truman Launches Drive for Funds

KANSAS CITY, Mo., July 29 (UP)—Former President Harry S. Truman today launched a rank and file drive for funds for the Democatic party and accused the opposition of dragging its feet on the iivil rights issue.

"It's the same Old political hooey that's gone on for 20 years," Truman said. "The Democratic party has always been right in this matter."

In a brief ceremony at the Truman Library here, Truman accepted from Paul M. Butler, Democratic national chairman, sustaining membership card No. 1 in a new drive to raise Democratic party funds by small contributions. Truman said he was proud to start off the campaign.

Butler, in response to queries by newsmen, blamed what he called "lack of aggressive leadership" in the Republican party for defeat of the school bill and delay on civil rights.

Hopes to Win Fight over Civil Rights Changes

WASHINGTON, July 29 (UP) — Senate Republican Leader William F. Knowland said today he has picked up support in his fight against attempts to write a jury trial guarantee into President Eisenhower's civil rights bill.

The Californian, who previously predicted the Senate would reject jury trial proposals, told newsmen he is now even more confident.

"I think the situation improved over the weekend," he said. Asked if the new recruits for the fight against the jury trial guarantee came from Democrats or Republicans, he replied, "some from each side."

Knowland said he is ready to vote tomorrow or Wednesday on an amendment by Sen. Joseph C. O'Mahoney (D-Wyo) to provide for jury trials for defendants in criminal contempt cases arising out of court orders designed to protect civil rights.

Will Be Key Test

The vote on the O'Mahoney amendment will be the key test in this, the fourth week of debate on the explosive civil rights issue. Southern foes have promised an "extended period of public education" on the bill if the amendment fails. This is a polite way of threatening a filibuster.

Despite Knowland's predictions, supporters of the jury trial amendment were also confident of victory. The only area of agreement was that the vote would be close.

The amendment's sponsors hoped to pick up a number of Northern Democrats, who sided with the administration last week in an unsuccessful attempt to retain even more sweeping enforcement powers in the bill.

Sen. Henry M. Jackson (D-Wash), one of these Democrats, told the Senate today he will vote for the O'Mahoney proposal.

A 'Dangerous Procedure'

Jackson said that failure to authorize jury trials would establish a "dangerous procedure." In its present form, he said, the House-approved bill would give the attorney general alternatives for prosecuting violations of voting rights.

"If a violating of voting rights occurred in Chicago—where the government thought a jury would convict—it could move for an indictment and jury trial," he said. "But if an identical case occurred in Mobile, the jury trial could be neatly bypassed through the injunctive process."

Jackson's defection was promptly offset by an announcement by Sen. H. Alexander Smith (R-N.J.) that he intends to vote with the administration and against the O'Mahoney amendment. Smith voted against the administration last week.

Eisenhower has called upon all GOP senators to close ranks against the O'Mahoney amendment. After a White House visit this morning, Knowland told newsmen he sees no need for any further action by the President.

"I think his position is very clear," Knowland said. "I see no necessity of any statement beyond what he said earlier this month." The President said then he was opposed to a jury trial provision

Valuable Object Goes on Display

LONDON, July 29 (UP)—An art object of such importance that the government refused to allow its sale to a foreign collector will go on display tomorrow in the Victoria and Albert Museum.

It was obtained for the benefit of the public by a grant from the National Art Collections Fund. It once was owned by count Cobham at his Hagley Park residence.

It has panels of floral parquetry in colored woods, brass mounts and handles and is described by the museum as "surely one of the most splendid" examples of its kind.

It is a boxed-in chamber pot.

Pittsburgh Steel Bonus Dividend; Sales Are Down

PITTSBURGH, July 29 (UP)—Pittsburgh Steel Co. declared a bonus dividend today despite first half earnings that slumped below the level set for the first six months of a year ago.

The board of directors voted the regular 25 cent a share dividend for the second quarter of 1957 and then awarded an additional payment of 1 per cent in stock for common shareholders.

The board also declared the regular dividends of $1.375 per share on prior preferred and $1.25 on Class A peferred. All payments were due Sept. 1 to shareholders on record Aug. 9.

Sales for the second quarter of 1957 dropped to $47,489,480 from the $51,964,579 level recorded in the second quarter of 1956. Earnings in the period also fell to $1,610,063 or 83 cents a share in the second quarter this year from $2,311,483 or $1.28 a share reported for the similar quarter last year.

First half earnings for the year were set at $3,621,323 or $1.91 a share compared with last year's first half report of $4,781,107 or $2.66 a share.

Dulles Arrives In London for Arms Ban Talks

LONDON, July 29 (UP)—Secretary of State John Foster Dulles arrived here tonight to seek Allied agreement on "open skies" aerial inspection as the key to breaking the disarmament stalemate with Russia.

"Every month that passes without agreement magnifies the problem of disarmament," Dulles told newsmen at London airport.

He said that if the danger of surprise attack can be reduced, it should prove easier to bring about disarmament and solve the "grave political problems which endanger peace."

The disarmament conference, now in its fifth month, has bogged down in discussion among the Western powers on where and how to install open skies inspection to prevent surprise attack. The allies have been trying since May 25 to frame an aerial inspection proposal to bring into the conference with Russia.

The Western proposal still had not been completed when Dulles touched down fro mCanada on orders from President Eisenhower to seek a way through the larger East-West stalemate.

Authoritative sources said negotiations still were going on among the NATO powers on three "open skies" zones—one in Europe, one covering portions of the United States and Russia and the third in the Arctic.

Nomination Dispute to Hold Up Printing of Monessen Ballots

A legal dispute over the Republican nomination in the upcoming Monessen mayoralty campaign will not be reviewed by the State Supreme Court before Sept. 30.

It had been rumored in county political circles that the Court would consider the case in special session so as not to delay the printing of ballots for the November general election.

However a clerk in the prothonotary's office in Pittsburgh said today that the State Supreme Court jurists will hear the dispute sometime during the regular session which begins July 30.

At issue is whether the county Elections Board should certify Mayor Hugo Parente or John R. Stieska as the Republican nominee.

Parente easily won the Democratic nomination, but both men also staged write-in campaigns on the Republican ticket.

The county Elections Board, acting on advice from its solicitor, ruled that only votes with names properly spelled could be counted. On that basis, Parente won, 70-58.

Acting on an appeal by Stieska, President Judge Richard Laird reversed the Elections Board, stating that all votes, regardless of how the names were spelled, should be counted. That gave Stieska the nomination, 170-149.

Subsequently, the Westmoreland County Court of Common Pleas, sitting en banc, ruled two-to-one to uphold Judge Laird's decision.

Parente's attorneys then appealed to the state Supreme Court. Such a case has never before reached the Supreme Court.

A spokesman for the county Elections Board said that the printing of Monessen ballots would probably be delayed because of the court battle.

Bids for the printing of county ballots will be awarded long before the Sept. 30 date, according to Commissioner Everett Noel.

"We plan to have voting machines on exhibition by Oct. 7 for instruction purposes," Noel said. "In all probability, we'll go ahead and have all ballots, with the exception of Monessen, printed."

Charleroi Man Hurt in One-car Crash on Rt. 906

The driver was injured in a one-car accident on Monessen-Webster Road, Route 906, yesterday about 3 p.m.

State police said a car driven by John Psak, Jr., 32, of 817 Washington Ave., Charleroi, hit a curb on the highway while traveling north, causing the car to go out of control. The car flipped over on its roof against a hillside. Dirt and rocks fell onto the highway.

Psak suffered lacerations of the lower lip and fingers.

The car was completely demolished.

The mishap held up traffic for some time.

Company D to Leave For Camp Next Sunday

Monessen's Company D, 110th Infantry, will leave early next Sunday morning for the annual two-week encampment of the 28th Infantry Division, Pennsylvania National Guard, at Indiantown Gap.

The Monessen unit, under the command of Capt. Harry B. Davis, of Donora will assemble at the Armory at 2 a.m. next Sunday. The company will leave on two chartered buses around 6 a.m.

Presently Company D has a strength of 84 men. However only 50 enlisted men and five officers will make the trip to Indiantown Gap.

The remaining 30 members of the company are scheduled for six months of active training sometime this year. At present, 12 members of the company are at Fort Jackson, S. C., under the six-month plan.

Company D, a heavey weapons outfit, is scheduled to drill at the mortar range the first three days of the encampment. This phase of the training will be under the diection of 1st Lt. Jack Sowden.

The company recruits will take special courses during the first week to acquaint them with basic infantry and basic weapon procedures.

Company D will return by bus on August 18.

A former commander of the Monessen company, Lt. Col. Nicholas Kafkalas, is in charge of planning and training for the two-week encampment. In all, some 9,000 men of the 28th Infantry Division will take part.

Area Mock Attack Is Disastrous

Civil Defense authorities said today that "literally nothing would be left of Monessen" if the mock nuclear attack on the city last July 12 were the real thing.

After studying the results of the nation-wide test, CD came up with this "deadly" observation:

The entire Monessen population would not only have been killed, but there would be no trace of the bodies!

In the mythical raid, a two megaton bomb, with the force of 2,000 tonn of TNT — hit at ground zero near the Charleroi-Monessen bridge.

The blast was so great, reported CD, that of the 20,977 killed in the district, only 2,311 bodies would be left to be buried and none in Monessen.

Throughout the area, the make-believe nuclear explosion completely destroyed 9,567 dwellings and left 8,749 homeless. A total of 3,830 persons suffered injuries.

The Monessen bomb also produced a fall-out which contaminated the southwestern corner of the county. The radioactive cloud then moved south in Fayette County.

Ever since the test, CD officials have been going over the results. They have concluded that quick CD reaction, particularly in areas affected by the fallout, could have saved many lives.

Penn State to Raise Fees for All Students Starting in September

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa. (UP)—The Pennsylvania State University today announced higher student fees and room and board charges, effective with the start of the new term in September.

Fees for full-time Pennsylvania resident students will be increased from $280 a year to $350 and for out-of-state students from $580 a year to $750.

Graduate, special, two-year agricultural and Mount Alto students will pay comparable increases.

Basic room and board charges, including dormitory counseling services, will rise from approximately $690 a year to $762 for men students and $780 for women.

"Our general aim in this matter," Dr. Eric A. Walker, university president, said, "is to effect a fee schedule that will be consistent with our commitment to provide an inexpensive education. . .and still permit Penn State to carry out the services and functions expected of it as the state university."

The new fee schedule was approved by the university's Board of Trustees.

Other increases approved by the trustees were: $3 per credit hour for Pennsylvania part-time students, $7 per credit hour for out-of-state students, $5 per course for vocational education courses, and $5 per year in the health and welfare fee for graduate students holding appointments as fellows, scholars or graduate assistants.

Students at the Penn State under graduate centers pursuing regular baccalaureate degree programs those in associate degree programs $35 more.

A new fee structure also will be set up for correspondence instruction, technical institute programs, informal instruction, labor education and management training.

Dr. Walker pointed out the new fee schedule will cost the parents of full-time Pennsylvania students only $70 a year more and the parents of out-of-state students "less than they would have to pay at most eastern colleges and universities offering comparable programs."

Alcoa Increases Basic Pig Prices

PITTSBURGH (UP)—Aluminum Company of America announced today an increase of one cent per pound, effective Aug. 1, in the price of basic aluminum pig.

The new price will be 26 cents per pound.

Alcoa pointed out that on Aug. 1, under terms of its three-year union agreements, it will grant increased benefits to hourly-paid employes. These, together with a 3-cent cost of living adjustment in effect since last Feb. 1, will cost the company approximately 21 cents per man per hour, it said.

Turnpike Board Hires Man as Purchasing Agent

HARRISBURG (UP)—The Pennsylvania Turnpike Commission today announced the appointment of Clifford E. Prodehl, Philadelphia, as purchasing agent at an annual $7,540 salary.

Dr. Merritt A. Williamson, commission vice chairman, said Prodehl would assume his new duties Aug. 1. Prodehl, of 6070 Chester Ave., Philadelphia, is a graduate of the University of Notre Dame and holds a masters degree in economics from Pennsylvania State University.

He succeeds August H. Brentari, Harrisburg, who was suspended April 16 during an investigation of turnpike affairs which resulted in his indictment along with others for alleged conspiracy and bribery.

Gina Lollobrigida Gives Birth to Son

ROME (UP) — Italian movie queen Gina Lollobrigida gave birth to a 6-pound, 11½ ounce boy Sunday and her husband said today his son has every chance of "being handsome."

Queen Elizabeth Serves Hot Dogs to Visiting U. S. Lawyers

LONDON, July 29 (UP) — Hotdogs and hamburgers — the American's dish of tea — were Queen Elizabeth's offering to 5,000 visiting American lawyers at Buckingham Palace today.

Queen Elizabeth's garden party for members of the American Bar Association marked the first all-American royal reception on record—and the debut of typical U.S. picnic fare in her majesty's canopied pavillion.

"This is the height of hospitality," commented one American lawyer. He and his American colleagues were frankly surprised at the menu because garden party fare traditionally consists of tea and crumpets, bridge rolls, thinly sliced sandwiches and tiny cakes.

The hotdogs and hamburgers were not regulation American style. The frankfurters were about an inch and a half long and folded daintily in a bridge roll. The hamburgers were served—without onions—on a sweet bun about the size of a silver dollar.

British Dress

The dress, however, was traditionally British, with the American women wearing pastel gowns and picture hats and many of the men sporting formal cut-aways and toppers.

One British guest did note, however, "one or two typical lurid American ties."

The Queen, elegantly gowned in a black corded silk coat and white hat with pale green flowers, strolled with the Duke of Edinburgh among the guests and chatted informally with them.

She then personally received 70 of the top delegates to the A.B.A. convention among them Chief Justice Earl Warren; Associate Justices Tom Clark and John Marshall Harlan; Attorney General Herbert Brownell; Charles Shyne of Washington, D.C., chairman of the House of Delegates of the A.B.A.; Association Secretary Joseph D. Stecher of Chicago; Treasurer Harold Bredell of Indianapolis, and E. Smythe Gambrell of Atlanta, retiring president of the association.

Mrs. William Gossett, wife of a Detroit lawyer and daughter of the late U. S. Supreme Court Justice Charles Evans Hughes, also was greeted by the young Queen whose grandparents entertained her father at another Buckingham Palace garden party 33 years ago.

West Proposes Another Plan to Reunify Germany

BERLIN, July 29 (UP) — The West today proposed a 12-point plan to reunify Germany. East German Communists promptly rejected it.

The Western allies and West Germany in a joint declaration signed here called on the Soviets to agree to free all-German elections, ruled out talks with East German Communists on unity and insisted on the right of a reunified nation to remain in NATO.

The declaration said the United States, Britain and France were ready to hold a four-power conference with the Soviet Union on Germany "at any time there is a reasonable prospect of making progress."

The official East German news service ADN promptly condemned the declaration as "a collection of unfruitful slogans years old."

ADN said the plan not only would retard German unity but would retard world disarmament.

The Soviets long have contended unity is an issue to be negotiated by the East-West German governments.

The Western powers said again today they would negotiate only with the Soviet Union and not with the puppet East German government on unity. They insisted that Germany could be unified only through free elections. And they ruled out the neutralization of Germany as the price of unity, insisting the nation must be free to choose its own foreign policies and alliances.

in the bill's "right-to-vote" section.

Knowland said he believed the bill would stand a better chance of enactment this year without a jury trial provision since the House rejected such an amendment. If O'Mahoney's amendment is licked, he said, the House would be more likely to accept other Senate changes in its measure.

But if the jury trial provision is included, he said, the House probably would send the measure to a joint Senate-House Conference Committee to work out a compromise between the House and Senate versions.

Knowland noted that such a compromise could also be the target of a Southern filibuster. If there is to be a Southern talkathon, he said, it would be "better to battle this out all summer" rather than to wait until later in the year.

Sen. Strom Thurmond (D-Sc) said bluntly in a statement that the Southerners' strategy is "to amend the bill in every way possible to weaken its effects."

"After that," he said, "we will try with all our might to defeat the entire bill."

Criminal Libel Hollywood Trial Is Postponed

HOLLYWOOD, July 29 (UP)—The criminal libel trial of two representatives of the magazine Confidential was postponed today until Friday at the request of defense attorneys.

Actor Walter Pidgeon was among several Hollywood celebrities who showed up in court for the scheduled start of the trial.

"I don't know why I'm here," said Pidgeon, who was the subject of an article in the scandal magazine. "I got a subpena, so I came down here."

Other celebrities who appeared in court were actress Corrine Calvert and her husband, actor Jeffrey Stone, and Buddy Baer, former professional fighter who turned to acting.

Defense attorneys for Red and Marjorie Meade have subpenaed more than 100 celebrities in an attempt to prove the truth of articles published in Confidential and Whisper magazines. The list includes Lana Turner and Gary Cooper. The prosecution has called the defense action a "reign of terror."

The Meades surrendered voluntarily to a grand jury indictment. The editors and publishers of the magazines are fighting extradition from the East.

Food Prices to Go Higher in Rest of 1957

WASHINGTON (UP) — The Agriculture Department reports that the housewife will be paying "moderately higher" prices for food purchases for the rest of 1957 than she did last year.

With employment and consumer incomes likely to be high, demand for food will remain strong, the department said Sunday night in its publication, "The National Food Situation."

Retail food prices during the second quarter of 1957 averaged around 3 per cent above those of a year earlier, despite the fact that farm prices were about the same in both periods. The increase in retail prices reflected higher marketing charges which were 6 per cent above those in the second quarter of 1956.

Anderson Sells Ex-Secretary $100 Bond

WASHINGTON, July 29 (UP)— Robert B. Anderson became the nation's 54th Treasury secretary today with a pledge to further fiscal policies which "will best contribute to the general welfare ...and our economy."

The new cabinet member's first official act was to pump some new money into the Treasury by selling a $100 government savings bond to his predecessor, George M. Humphrey, chief architect of the controversial "tight money" policy.

Anderson, a former Texas Democrat for Eisenhower turned Republican, took his oath of office in the cabinet room of the White House with President Eisenhower holding the Bible.

"Find Warm Welcome"

Eisenhower told the 47-year-old Anderson afterward that "you will find here a warm welcome, as you know." Turning to Humphrey, he said with a grin, "George, this seems to be our last official visit. Now, you're just an ex-bureaucrat."

Anderson refused to commit himself to any hard - and - fast course as fiscal chief of the world's biggest tax collecting and spending government. He said it would be "conjectural" to say now how he would meet situations which may arise later.

But he said the continued health of the economy was of "vital importance" to individual Americans as well as to the government. Therefore, he said, he will be guided by "what will best contribute to the general welfare of our country and our economy."

After finishing the statement Anderson turned to Humphrey and handed the former Secretary a $100 savings bond in return for Humphrey's personal check for $75. Humphrey was barred by law from owning any federal securities while in office.

Anderson said Humphrey was well aware that the purchase of bonds on a regular basis was vital to the economy. Humphrey replied that his purchase was a "real pleasure" and he was "just delighted" to join the nation's 40 million other savings bond holders.

Anderson, a former Navy secretary and undersecretary of defense in the Eisenhower administration, was sworn in by Associate Justice Warren Burger of the District of Columbia Appeals Court.

Net earnings were $29,239,370, or $2.95 a share, after income tax provisions. This was down 3.4 per cent from earnings after income taxes for the comparable period of 1956.

Second quarter sales were $160,186,668 highest in the company's history. Second quarter earnings amounted to $16,013,078, or $1.61

Defends Refinancing Plan Before Senate

WASHINGTON, July 29 (UP)— Treasury Undersecretary W. Randolph Burgess said today the Treasury's recent 24 billion dollar refinancing added about 250 million dollars to the annual interest charges on the national debt.

But he told the Senate Finance Committee that the refunding transaction was a "successful operation" despite the fact that most of the funds were borrowed at 4 per cent rate, highest since the early depression thirties.

He said that the high rate "is one of the costs to the American taxpayers of a monetary and credit policy which is the primary bulwark against the loss of untold billions of dollars through inflation."

Hurting The Nation

Democratic members of the finance committee, which is investigating administration money policies, claim the high rate proved their charges that the "tight money" policy is hurting the nation.

"We would prefer to do our borrowing at lower rates," Burgess told the committee. "Naturally, any debtor would."

He added that more than half of the extra interest charges on the national debt will revert to the Treasury "since $14,500,000,000 of the 24 billion was held by federal reserve banks and 90 per cent of their net earnings are returned to us."

Bugess, who is retiring from the Treasury, was only the second administration official to testify in the committee's broad investigation of the government's "tight money" policies.

Humphrey Testified

Former Treasury Secretary George M. Humphrey, who was succeeded today by Robert B. Anderson, testified for 14 days as the first witness in the inquiry.

Burgess, recently appointed to the North Atlantic Treaty Organization headquarters in Paris, told the committee that the national debt on June 30 totaled $270,500,000,000, about two billion dollars below the previous year.

"While this reduction is not large" he said, "the important point is that despite huge defense expenditures, the upward sweep of the debt has been checked and reversed."

Allen's Men's Wear Shop Gets New Stainless Front

Allen's men's wear shop at 441 Schoonmaker Ave., Monessen, has completed another phase of its long-range remodeling program with the recent installation of a new stainless steel, black enameled surface front.

Begun in June, work on the front was completed yesterday.

The remodeling program got underway in 1953 with the installation of spacious display windows in the store's front. A year later, modern lighting fixtures were placed throughout the store.

Allen Cowan, proprietor, has been in the men's wear business in Monessen since 1935, having moved to the present location in 1940.

Turnpike Toll Rates Blasted

WASHINGTON (UP)—A motorist would have to pay $31.68 in tolls to drive over the entire 2,190 miles of the nation's major turnpikes, the American Automobile Association said today.

This averages out to one and one-half cents per mile and is equivalent to adding 21 cents per gallon to the gasoline tax of motorists using the toll roads, the AAA said.

The AAA, which favors making all turnpikes in the interstate and defense highway system toll free, said the cheapest rate was 1.08 cents per mile on the Pennsylvania Turnpike and the most expensive — 2.22 cents — on Florida's Miami — Fort Pierce Turnpike.

British Jets Blast Oman Rebels With Rockets; Prepare for Attack

SHARJA, Trucial Oman, July 29 (UP) — British Venom jets aimed their heaviest rocket attack against rebelling Oman tribesmen today, and British ground troops moved up to advance headquarters in the Buraimi oasis in readiness for an expected infantry attack.

Ten Royal Air Force Venom jets armed with cannon and rockets blasted the fort of Birkat, five miles east of Izki, after a two-day lull in air operations.

Previous air strikes have been carried out by only one or two planes. Today's larger operation seemed a final move to win surrender of the poorly-armed rebels through a show of British force.

British Cameronian Highlanders moved up to the Buraimi forward base in secrecy. They joined the main elements of the Sultan of Oman's 1,000-man force of British-officered native troops.

The two companies of highlanders poised at the oasis could not be committed against the rebels until orders arrived from London.

A sign of confusion in high circles over future policy was seen in the fact that the Venom jets stood ready for eight hours today before the take-off order came.

(In the British House of Commons today, Foreign Secretary Selwyn Lloyd said "this is as much a political operation as a military operation. It was planned that the military side should be kept within as small limits as possible."

(Lloyd said, however, that the Sultan of Muscat and Oman has formally requested "maximum military and air support, against the forces of the rebelling Imam of Oman.

(Lloyd said Britain could not afford to ignore the Sultan's request since it would be interpreted in the restive Persian Gulf region as a sign the British "were no longer willing or able to help their friends.")

A spokesman for the Sultan said today the rebel tribesmen number only about 200 and are "now cornered in a mountainous region and troops are encircling them."

However, the Imam's rebels appeared unimpressed by the localized jet fighter attacks and apparently intended to stand firm in their mountain redoubt.

Privileges for the Few Expensive for All

THE SENATE committee on unfair practices in the labor-management field has before it a job of not only immediate importance but perhaps historic importance as well. What gives it its historic coloring is that we have apparently reached that point in the dominance of one class over another when Americans traditionally have put the scales back in balance.

Roscoe Pound, the respected former dean of the Harvard Law School, finds that legal privileges formerly given to or seized by certain classes — such as the nobility, landowners or ruthless business pioneers — have been disappearing, but that a new favored class has arisen made up of labor unions, their officials and some of their members.

Dean Pound, from the vantage point of a student of law, writes that these groups, although they have not the right to, are taking the liberty to "commit wrongs to persons and property, to interfere with the use of highways, to break contracts, to deprive individuals of the means of earning a livelihood, to control the activities of individual workers and their local organizations by national organizations centrally and arbitarily administered beyond the reach of state laws, and to misuse trust funds — things which no one else can do with impunity".

* * *

YOU MAY NOT agree with Lord Acton's famous saying, "All power corrupts and absolute power corrupts absolutely", but it is apparent in the comment of many union members that they feel the labor movement is being corrupted by some unprincipled leaders. Indeed there may well be the feeling among many of the rank and file that labor will never again be exploited by employers on the scale that labor is now being exploited by some of its own leaders.

The Senate investigation into labor racketeering has led to a host of legislative proposals. Many of these are designed to prevent union treasuries and welfare funds from being looted by crooked officers. That is certainly a necessary step: it might have saved the Teamsters Union the embarrassment of Dave Beck. But that is merely a symptom of a larger ill.

The corruptive forces among union heads lies in their monopoly power, and all Americans are almost by nature suspicious of monopoly. It can be ended in the labor movement by a free-choice law which would make union membership voluntary, and by bringing unions under the application of the anti-trust laws like everyone else.

Congressmen might shy away from such legislation on the mistaken idea it would not be politically healthy. Union members might shy away from it on the mistaken idea that their jobs and earnings might suffer. Conscientious Americans, however, are citizens before they are politicians or union members. We believe both are capable of recognizing a need and acting to meet it when the general welfare is at stake.

The New Germany

GERMAN MILITARISM was widely assumed to have been crushed forever in World War I, but it was again rampant in 1939. This time it was Hitler and his Nazi racketeers, instead of the Prussian junkers and the Wehrmacht general staff, that were the visible symptoms of German militarism, and it was the leading army officers that actually tried to overthrow Hitler.

Will German militarism menace the world again? Nothing could seem less likely at this particular time. The country lost two great wars in succession and is still partitioned after suffering devastating air bombardment. Pacifism is strong there. There is considerable opposition to compulsory military training.

The most striking indication that times have changed in Germany is the manner in which West German conscripts are being coddled. The boot camps send draftees' parents invitations to come visiting that sound as if they might haven been issued by a children's summer camp. Drill instructors are urged to make life pleasant for their charges.

Recruits are encouraged to write signed or unsigned letters to their superiors detailing their gripes. And they do compose such complaints — about the food, the $15-a-month pay, lack of adequate hot water, and so on.

Although it seems strangely out of character, here is part of a letter sent to parents by one camp commander: "When greeting recruits here I told them that while this would not be the same as living at home, yet they could be sure that I would be a just and considerate superior. You may be sure that your concern for your boys is shared by my officers, noncommissioned officers, and especially myself."

If this means the Germans have learned that war is not the noblest pursuit of man, if it means they now feel as we do that war and the military should be subservient to peace and the civilian establishment, then an important source of trouble in the world has been dispelled.

Merry-Go-Round—

Vote Against School Aid to Help Russia

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON — Things move fast in the House of Representatives. They move so fast that experts can hardly keep up with them. In split seconds a motion is gaveled down. In a couple of seconds, a voice vote is ruled on. The hubbub, the whispered conversations, the visiting along the aisle is so loud sometimes you can hardly hear the Speaker.

Mr. Pearson

It was during this fast-moving welter of debate last week that a vote was taken which will mean that the United States starts slipping behind Russia on education. For 100 years or so the USA has been well ahead of Russia on schools, teachers, universities. Russian illiteracy under the czar was 75 per cent. Now almost every Russian can read and write.

In some parts of Russia children are required to spend 10 years in school — which means two compulsory years of high school — ahead of some parts of the USA.

New, modern schoolhouses have been springing up all over Russia. Amazing amounts of money have been spent on them. The State University of Kazakh looks as modern as the Supreme Court Building in Washington. The new building of Moscow University cost $150,000,000 and resembles a New York skyscraper. It cost about as much as the entire campus of many American colleges. Russians claim 4,300,000 students are enrolled in their universities and colleges, which also includes technical schools. Our universities and colleges have 3,000,000. Thirty-eight million are registered in Russian primary and high schools.

All in all, Russia is still behind, but is catching up.

Philadelphia Banker's Last Battle

A Republican banker who doesn't like Communism led the battle to pass a school bill on the turbulent floor of the House last week. He is Sam McConnel of Ardmore, Pa., the fashionable Main Line just outside Philadelphia. He traveled over the USA at his own expense studying schools, decided they were vitally needed. This will be Sam's last session of Congress. He is returing at the end of the year. And the attempt to pass the school bill was his last big battle. He lost it.

The man who outmaneuvered him was another Republican, Congressman "Two-Cadillac" Charley Halleck, who came to Washington a poor country lawyer from northern Indiana. Now he is wealthy. Charley sent his children to private schools, the most expensive in Washington. So public schools aren't important to him.

But to Sam McConnell, wealthy Philadelphia investment banker, they are. During the school debate, another Republican, Bill Ayres of Akron, Ohio proposed substituting the original Eisenhower school bill for the McConnell-Democratic compromise bill. This distributed Federal funds on the basis of need, not on the basis of both population and need.

Up jumped "Two-Cadillac" Charley.

"Now this is the bill the President really wants," he declared. "I could support this amendment."

Later Halleck had this remark censored from the Congressional Record — for reasons that will become obvious in a minute.

At this point, northern Democrats came over to Sam McConnell, told him they would throw their full weight behind the Ayres proposal. McConnell was jubilant. He jumped up, started to telephone the White House, confident he could get an immediate message from Eisenhower supporting the bill.

Before he could act, Halleck went over to Congressman Howard Smith of northern Virginia, leader of the conservative Dixie-Republican coalition. They knew the tide was going against them; a school bill might be passed. Smith then moved to strike the enacting clause of the original compromise bill.

This forestalled McConnell's move to phone the White House and pass the Ayres Republican bill which northern Democrats had accepted.

"Two-Cadillac" Charley then voted with the Dixie-GOP coalition to kill the bill and promptly had his own earlier remarks expunged from the Record.

That's how fast things move in the House of Representatives. That's also how hypocritical some Congressmen can be. It's also why children will be going to run-down, cramped, and crowded school-houses in many parts of the USA this year. Finally, it is why Russia will probably forge ahead of the USA in schools within the next couple of years.

The peak wartime average output of crude oil in 1945 reached some four million 695 thousand barrels a day.

From Washington—

Secretary Anderson Takes Over

By ROSCOE DRUMMOND

The Eisenhower Cabinet is proving mighty durable.

Here is an administration into its fifth year and we witness today only the fourth change in the Cabinet — the first of the second term—when the bluff and booming George M. Humphrey handed over the Treasury to Robert B. Anderson, a tall Texan who is too shy to tell tall Texas stories.

Mr. Drummond

No administration from Hoover to Eisenhower has exhibited such continuity at the top level as has prevailed during the past five years.

Actually only one of the four shifts in the Eisenhower Cabinet brought a new figure into the government. This was James Mitchell who succeeded Martin Durkin as Secretary of Labor. Marion Folsom was in the Treasury before he followed Oveta Culp Hobby as Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare. Fred Seaton was an assistant to the President in the White House when he was appointed Secretary of the Interior after Douglas McKay resigned to run for the Senate.

I am not suggesting that continuity in office is always a virtue, but at the Cabinet and sub-Cabinet level it can be extremely valuable, particularly in view of the difficulty of getting good new men and in view of the fact that it takes a top Federal official six months to a year to master his job.

The interesting question which arises from yesterday's event, the shift in the Treasury, is whether Secretary Anderson will exert the same wide-ranging influence which Secretary Humphrey exerted, and in the same direction.

Conservative Man

Robert Anderson is a very different kind of man than George Humphrey, with nearly the same views and instinct on fiscal policy.

Anderson is financially conservative. He would like to see the Government spending less and taxing less. Mr. Humphrey, who is conservative on money and conservative in dealing with human problems, personally recommended Anderson as his successor. He recommended him undoubtedly because he was convinced that Anderson would maintain the same basic direction of Government fiscal and monetary policy, which Humphrey has so largely set.

The retiring Secretary of the Treasury is right in this appraisal of his successor but Mr. Humphrey exerted a great influence beyond the Treasury on a wide range of policies — defense, foreign trade, economic aid and other matters. I suggest that it should not be taken for granted that Mr. Anderson's influence will be the same as Mr. Humphrey's.

There are differences as well as similarities between the two.

Anderson is a Texas Democrat who switched to Eisenhower in 1952. Humphrey is a right-of-Taft Republican and never switched.

Anderson is wholly aware that high American tariffs no longer serve our economic needs, that expanding international trade is vital to our prosperity and to the stability of the free world. Mr. Humphrey continued to think fondly of protective tariffs and took a pretty dim view of the reciprocal trade act.

Anderson strongly supports the Administration's economic aid program as a wise investment in security, while Mr. Humphrey never really believed in it at all. In private letters to friends he made it clear that as far as he was concerned he would like to see the whole thing thrown out.

It is, I think, misleading, certainly premature, to look at the many similarities between the two, and the fact that Secretary Humphrey personally sought out his successor, and conclude therefrom that Mr. Anderson is going to be the same kind of force for all the same ends as Mr. Humphrey.

Mr. Eisenhower is known to have remarked lightly but a little wryly to friends: "You know, George can be persuaded, but you can't keep him persuaded."

Secretary Anderson will not be as visible an influence within the Administration as Mr. Humphrey but I am inclined to think his quiet influence would grow.

I would say that Robert Anderson is just as conservative as George Humphrey but believes that conservative government must accept larger responsibilities than some conservatives relish.

The President accepts Mr. Humphrey's leaving with regret and welcomes Mr. Anderson's coming with satisfaction.

Economy Wave Halts Federal School Aid

By LYLE C. WILSON

WASHINGTON (UP)—President Eisenhower is being accused of scuttling his own bill for federal aid to schools, but that seems not to be what actually happened.

What hit the school-aid bill last week was a blast of grass roots indignation against high taxes and high levels of government spending. There were other factors, of course, in the five-vote margin by which the House refused to appropriate funds for school construction. Racial integration had a big part.

Mr. Wilson

Both major parties met last summer in national nominating conventions which also drafted statements of political principles commonly known as platforms. These wordy documents, read by few and understood by fewer, each bore one strong resemblance to the other. That resemblance was that each tried to promise a little something for everybody, more, if possible, than the other promised.

By such devices both major parties formally committed themselves before the 1956 presidential campaign to spend a lot of federal money on local schools. Came the whopping new Eisenhower budget last January and things began to happen.

Get New Chairman

On Jan. 22 the Republican Party got a new national chairman, hand-picked by the President and his advisers. The new man was Meade Alcorn, of Connecticut, tagged as a modern Republican evangelist.

Alcorn proceeded immediately to a series of huddles with congressional Republicans from whom he heard bad news—the Eisenhower administration was in serious trouble with the voters. The new chairman hustled to the White House to talk it over. He subsequently received from Eisenhower a letter which, the United Press was informed, stated bluntly that the people should have the greatest and most effective voice in determining party policy.

The letter instructed Alcorn to go forth among the people to discover what was wrong. He was to return to tell the President how things stood. There followed regional Republican meetings in five cities, Omaha, Neb.; Salt Lake City, Utah; Louisville, Ky.; Cincinnati, Ohio, and Trenton, N.J.

The grass roots participants in those meetings came later — last May—to Washington. The regional meetings were closed to the public. The assembled Republicans spoke frankly of their troubles. A digest of their gripes, jeers and cheers was compiled for presentation to Eisenhowe. by Alcorn escorted by Sen. Andrew Schoeppel (R-Kan.) and Rep. Richard M. Simpson (R-Pa.).

Not Made Public

This report has not been made public. The United Press was informed, however, that Eisenhower's school-aid spending was the most aggressively challenged of all of his policies. The grass rooters repudiated both the President and the party platform on that issue.

The President's enthusiasm for some big time spending to build schools probably began to wilt about the time he got the Alcorn-Schoeppel-Simpson report and it did not thereafter stiffen. The word around town shortly before last week's House vote killed the school bill was that Eisenhower would make a sudden and dramatic appeal for its approval.

There was no such appeal and persons familiar with the background of the controversy were not surprised when it was not forthcoming. It has been said of some politicians that they detect grass roots trends by the unlikely method of simultaneously putting both ears to the ground. Eisenhower did not have to accomplish that feat to hear what Republican grass rooters thought of building local schools with federal funds.

The Lighter Side—

One Reunion Helps to Counteract Separations

By DOC QUIGG

NEW YORK (UP) —Unrest is gripping our midsummer manners all over, marked by numerous partings of parties long joined.

In New York, Tammany Hall and its publicity man resigned from each other after the publicist took on the Dominican Republic as a client. A conflict of client viewpoints was indicated.

Also in New York, an advertising firm known for short as BBD&O resigned from the Reader's Digest advertising account because of a "conflict of interest" between the magazine and another BBD&O client which is engaged in largescale manufacture of cigarettes.

In London, Prof. J.B.S. Haldane, a leading geneticist, resigned from England because it had "foreign troops all over the place; yes, I do mean the Americans." Haldane, who long had voiced disgruntlement with British policies, left to settle in a "free country"—India, where he doubtless will be gruntled as all get-out.

Comes Bright News

In the face of these and other reports of cleavage of unions of long standing, comes the bright news of a prospective reunion after dreary years of separation — Imogene Coca and Sid Caesar probably will get together again on television.

For this TV onlooker, the prospective return of Miss Coca to the national living room with the proper framework for her remarkable talents is the happiest news since the invention of air conditioning. I must confess to a certain overflow of heroine worship in her direction for many years.

In the ancient days before television, I used to go to any night-club at which she was appearing just for the privilege of sitting there and watching her roll those billiard-ball eyes. She had one skit in which she rolled the audience in the tiny aisles by whipping out a trombone and braying on it in lampoon of Spitalny's all-girl band twirling her eyes in time to the music.

Has Outstanding Equipment

To the business of being a funny person, Miss Coca brings some outstanding equipment. Her face is so arranged that her leer is the finest in the comic world today, bar none. Her voice can range from a splitting squeak that would startle a rat, down through the roller-coaster of coloratura into a husky bass hodel which can be described only by remarking that it has undertones.

She has a pretty fair knack at ballet, too, if she wants to travesty that dance form. And as a mimic and pantomimist — from femme fatale to wispy hobo—she is tops.

Caesar is a fine comedian. It is to be hoped that if he brings Miss Coca back on a show with him, he will turn her loose unreined onstage and let her ramble.

The Woman's View—

Bike Suggestion Is Problem

By GAY PAULEY

NEW YORK (UP)—This here town's sure changing. The Giants are leaving, the Dodgers may. Now, there's a move afoot to turn Fifth Avenue into a bicycle path on weekends.

This last matter came up, just as the avenue began plans for a golden anniversary celebration as the world's showcase for fashion. It will be staged Oct. 10-18 by the Fifth Avenue Association, whose 1,100 merchant members work to keep the thoroughfare a "mecca of quality."

Now, along has come Shane McCarthy, executive director of President Eisenhower's Youth Fitness Council, with a proposal that the street be restricted to bicycling on weekends. He would do the same for other main drags in other cities, as one means of keeping us all fit.

"Inactivity can cause rot," said McCarthy bluntly.

"Well, his suggestion would have to go before our board of directors" said William J. Sloan, the association's secretary for 33 years

Maybe it should go before a lot of New Yorkers and tourists as well. Could be that bicycling is what we all need to prevent the "human erosion" Mr. McCarthy mentioned. I won't quarrel with the expert. But the only way to know Fifth Avenue intimately is to walk it. Ride a bike in Central Park, say I.

How other than by walking can a girl have time to dream before a jewelry window at Cartier's or Tiffany's?

It takes a stroll to see the latest in fashions from New York, Paris or London—either in the shop windows or on the mink-clad women. Why do you suppose Irving Berlin made Fifth Avenue the setting for a sonnet about a bonnet!

If McCarthy's proposal should catch on, there will be a lot more activity (he is against inactivity) in the fashion world. What to design for us girls for biking. Not blue jeans along Fifth Avenue, perish forbid. More likely mink cardigans topping velveteen culottes.

Frances Domonkos Weds R. W. Zuraw

Solemnized in St. Sebastian R. C. Church of Belle Vernon on Saturday, July 27, was the marriage of Frances J. Domonkos, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Domonkos, of 1004 Hill St., Belle Vernon and Richard William Zuraw. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. George Zuraw, Sr., 1001 Third St., Charleroi.

The nuptial high mass was celebrated at 10 o'clock in the morning by the Rev. David Fisher, assistant at St. Sebastian.

White floral arrangements and ferns decorated the church altar. The aisle was lined with white crash and white satin bows marked the family pews.

Mrs Michael Yencsik was the organist and also sang the responses to the mass.

Entering the church with her father, who gave her in marriage, the bride was attired in a floor length gown of point d'esprit over slipper satin. It was styled with a fitted bodice, sabrina neckline accented with seed pearsl, self covered buttons down the back and brief cap sleeves. The bouffant skirt was very full.

Her fingertip veil of misty French illusion was held to her high seed pearl crown, and she wore pearl eerrings and mitts to match her gown to complete her ensemble. She carried a white Prayer Book, a gift of the bridegroom, and it was topped with a white orchid and fleur d'amour.

Before reciting her marriage vows, the bride placed a bouquet of blue and white carnations before the altar of the Blessed Mother.

Matron of honor was Mrs. Robert Whiten, of Charleroi, cousin of the bridegroom. She wore a gown of yellow nylon chiffon over net. It was styled with a shirred bodice with short sleeves, and a full skirt. She wore a crown with a brief veil to match her gown, and carried a colonial bouquet of yellow asters with an orchid ruffle and streamers.

Bridesmaids were Madeline Savage, of Fairhope, Sandra Bohlander, of Charleroi, and Walda Breuer, of Coal Center. They all wore gowns in pale orchid styled identical to that worn by the honor attendant. They wore matching crowns and brief veils. Their flowers were orchid asters in a colonial arrangement with a yellow ruffle and streamers.

Best man was Donald Podwika, of Charleroi, who is stationed with the army in Fort Knox, Ky. Ushers were Robert Whiten, of Charleroi, Jack Blair of Belle Vernon and George Vrasthyk, of North Charleroi.

Marcella Smereczniak, of Belle Vernon, was the flower girl. She wore a pale green sheer gown with fitted bodice and full skirt. She wore a matching crown, and carried a colonial bouquet of tinted green asters with yellow streamers.

Richard Smereczniak served as ring bearer.

The mother of the bride wore a dress of blue lace and taffeta with pink and white accessories and a pink carnation corsage. The mother of the bridegroom wore a pink linen sheath dress with white accessories and a blue tinted carnation corsage.

The bride's paternal grandmother, Mrs. Julia Domonkos, wore a navy blue ensemble. Mrs. Catherine Yadrick, maternal grandmother of the bridegoom, was present in a navy blue dress with black accessories. Both wore corsages of mixed asters.

A wedding breakfast at Peasant Village followed the ceremony, and later there was a reception at the Charleroi Turner Hall. There were 300 guests in attendance. A four tiered wedding cake trimmed with orchid and yellow was topped with a miniature bridal couple, and centered the bridal table.

Vic Gallo's orchestra provided the music for dancing.

When the couple left for a trip to Florida the bride was wearing a turquoise ensemble with white accessories and an orchid corsage. When they return they will live at the Domonkos home.

The parents of the bridegroom entertained at the rehearsal party the evening before the ceremony. It was held at their home for members of the wedding party. The bride and bridegroom gave their attendants gifts.

Orchid and yellow was the color scheme for the appointments and decorations.

The new Mrs. Zuraw attends Bellmar High School, and her husband was graduated in 1953 from Charleroi. He is employed at the Thorofare Market at Monessen Park Plan.

Guests attended the wedding from Clairton, McKeesport, Monongahela, Belle Vernon, Charleroi, Detroit, Mich. Coudersport, Bentleyville and Belle Vernon.

Movie Club to Film MHS Tilts Again

Monessen's Movie Club plans to film all Monessen High football games again this season . . . Incidentally, the Movie Club took almost 1200 feet of film at the recent CIO picnic at Rainbow Gardens near McKeesport . . . Speaking of sports-minded American Legion Posts, Belle Vernon Post 659 will take in a Pirate game on August 23 with about 40 members going to Forbes Field to root for the Bucs. The Legionnaires are hoping the Pirates cut out their "corny" play of late as the 659 members will have their fill of that tomorrow night at the Post Home and — it's on the house.

Former teammate Dick DeRosa has accepted the head coaching post at Millvale High (basketball and football) and another Cecconi aide at Sharpsburg, Tony Romantino, also an ex-Dragon ace, is reportedly interested in one of the assistant coaching vacancies at Rostraver. By the way, Carl Crawley's homer off Don Young of Fayette City the other night was Crawley's first off a left handed hurler. As you know Carl hits from the left side . . . Ex-Gridder Teaches Girls 'Grace'

When you hear those TV commercials about Earl Wheeler's school for models bet you've pictured Earl Wheeler as a slightly built individual somewhat on the "dainty" side. Are you in for a surprise, for Earl happens to be an ex-All-State high school athlete in football and basketball, winning a scholarship to Michigan where he played freshman ball with the renowned Bob Chappius, who later played for the Steelers. An injury in Wheeler's freshman year cut short a promising career. Now the ex-rugged gridder, who must've been a "graceful" performer as that's what he teaches the girls to be, has a former Mon Valley sportsman, now a Pittsburgh public relationer, Sam Silver, handling his publicity. If you think those models are "grace" personified you should read some of Silver's literary work — it has that perfect touch.

Vets Top Ravens in LL Playoffs, 11-6

Paced by John Sivie the VFW entry in the American Division of the local Little League was one-up on the Ravens in the first game of their best-of-three game series for the Division title here last night, winning 11-6.

Sivie clubbed a two-run homer and a single. He received help in the hitting department from Richard Steele and Gerald Harter who had a double and single and Fred Usher with a homer.

For the Ravens it was Paul Barton and John Tweardy with two singles in three trips to the plate who looked the best but couldn't furnish enough to counteract the VFW attack. Gus Coccolone checked in with a double for the only Raven extra base blow. Earl Stevenson of VFW tripled.

The Vets took a 5-0 first-inning lead and were never headed. Five more runs in the fifth clinched matters.

Moundsmen were Barton, relieved by John Pascarella for the losers, Steele and Harter for the VFW nine.

The two entries go at it again tomorrow night at 5 o'clock in the second game of the three-game series.

In the National Division, the CIO and Elks' nines were battling following the American Division playoff last night but due to an early press deadline because of Community Picnic day today it was not possible to print the result in today's issue. The result will appear tomorrow.

Cro-Ams Post 4-1 Victory

ULBA gave the Cro-Ams a battle in a game featuring good pitching at City Park last night but the first-placers came out on top, 4-1.

It was a pitcher's duel between Cro-Ams Stello Telegraphis and Silck Schilling of ULBA, each giving up only five hits.

The Cro-Ams tallied twice in the third to take a 2-0 lead on a triple by Elmer Lutska, and an error, plating one run, a walk, single by "Ears" Rusnak accounting for the other marker.

Another Cro-Am run crossed in the fifth on a double by Frank Stancato, who later went to third on a ground out and a sacrifice fly. The final tally came in the sixth on a single by Rusnak and Steve Roskovich's triple.

ULBA's lone run came in on Jim Lewitsky's homer in the fifth.

Rusnak showed two hits for the Cro-Ams, Ron Karbowsky collecting two singles for ULBA.

There will be no action today due to the picnic but Wednesday PNA and the Ravens will meet in a regularly scheduled game.

The Cro-Am record now stands at 12-1.

HS Coaching Changes Involve Area Products

An unusual number of coaching changes have occurred in the WPIAL this season, many of them involving district schools and coaches.

For instance, Andy Yartin replacing George Bulazo at West Newton and Leon (Bud) Carson leaving Scotldale where he was replaced by Joe Graison.

Other familiar valley and district names involved in switches include former Donorans Tony Romantino and Nick DeRosa leaving Bimbo Cecconi's staff at Sharpsburg, for new posts: Ben Haldy, former Monongahela High mentor, resigning at Vandergrift (where he went when he quit Monongahela. He stays on the teaching staff at Vandergrift but no more coaching); Pete Balog, former Rostraver and Vernon High coach, stepping down at Mt. Pleasant Ramsay, replaced by assistant Frank Ferrell.

Still others from the area making moves are Joe Metro from Ellsworth to Bloomsburg High replaced by Paul Lapsevic, former aide: Frank Mizikar resigning as an assistant at Bellmar, replaced by new cage coach Thomas Healey, of Wellsville O.; Frank Lignelli pulling stakes at Monongahela High as an assistant (he was once head mentor) to take a post at Clarion State Teachers College. No successor has been named.

Another name very familiar to valley grid followers is Kenny Karl, who piloted Har-Brack in '53 when his entry battled Donora to a 0-0 tie for the WPIAL title. Coming home from an assistant's job at Indiana where he assisted the since deposed Bernie Crimmins, Carl has taken over at Turtle Creek for resigned Ossie Rometo.

One change almost lost in the last-minute rush was the loss of a valued assistant by Charleroi Coach Rab Currie, when linementor and former college pal, Mike Booth resigned at the close of last school term to accept a job in Ohio and to fulfill a Naval Reserve assignment.

It won't be the players you won't know without a scorecard this season, it'll be the coaches!

Roberts Cops Feature Race At Heidelberg

A new driver, John Roberts of Saginaw, Mich., who had finished second in a heat race and a trophy dash, sped out in front on the 22nd lap to win the feature 50-lap sprint car race at Heidelberg Raceway before 4,247 fans Sunday afternoon.

Leon Clum of Wapakaneta, O., who had won the second heat race and who had finished third in the trophy dash, had taken the lead from the start and held it until Roberts caught him on the 22nd.

Roberts never was headed and finished seven lengths in front. Wayne Alsbaugh of Anderson, Ind., who had won two earlier races, finished third.

Herb Scott of Wexford, leading Pittsburgh Racing Association driver, who switched to the different type of race car did not place.

Vic Ellis of Rockton, Ill., turned in the fastest qualifying time, 22.22 seconds, for the high-banked half-mile track. Roberts' 22-51 qualifying time was second best.

Heavy Exhibition Card Set for NFL Season

PHILADELPHIA, July 29 (UP)—The National Football League announced today that its 12 teams will play 36 exhibition games in 18 states before opening the regular season Sept. 29.

The pre-season campaign will open with the New York Giants, defending NFL champions, playing the College All-Stars at Chicago Aug. 9.

New York will visit the Detroit Lions and the San Francisco Forty-Niners will play host to the Philadelphia Eagles in the final exhibition games Sept. 22. NFL teams played 37 exhibition games last year.

Exhibitions will be played in 28 cities. In addition to games in states in which league teams are located, warm-up contests are scheduled in Oregon, Washington, Florida, Texas Alabama, Massachusets, Missouri, North Carolina, Kentucky and Minnesota.

Bert Bell, NFL commissioner, said most of the exhibitions are being sponsored by newspapers and other organizations for charitable purposes. Bell said approximately a half million dollars is raised annually for charity in the league's exhibition contests.

All NFL teams except the Giants began training last weekend. The Giants started earlier in order to get ready for the All-Star Game.

DOCTORING YOUR GOLF

By CARY MIDDLECOFF

Too Much Form

To much concentration on "form" in the golf swing makes the action stilted. You want to swing properly, certainly, but you must realize that the stroke must have spontaneity for decent results.

The fault here almost always lies in trying to remember too many details of the swing at one time.

Pick one point to concentrate on at a time. With me, it is usually keeping the right elbow in close to the body as I make the downswing. You might want to concentrate on keeping the head still. Or shifting the weight to the left side immediately as the downswing begins.

In any event, don't tie yourself in knots by trying to do several things separately while making a golf swing. There simply isn't time.

Two Aussies Withdraw in Singles Play

SOUTHAMPTON, N. Y., July 29 (UP)— Ashley Cooper and Neale Fraser of Australia withdrew today from singles play in the 69th Meadow Club invitation tennis tournament which starts Tuesday, leaving two of his countrymen, defending champion Roy Emerson and Mal Anderson, the favorites.

With most of America's top players involved in the American Zone Davis Cup series at Boston next weekend, the chief U. S. threats in the Meadow Club tourney will be Whitney Reed of Alameda, Calif., and Don Dell of Bathesda, Md. Reed and Dell reached the quarterfinals of the Pennsylvania State Tournament at Haverford last week.

Cooper withdrew from the singles competition saying he felt "stale" from too much tennis and Fraser complained of a pulled leg muscle. They will play doubles together. Australia also will be represented in singles by young Bob Mark.

A balanced field of 64 men are entered in singles. There is no women's competition. Two rounds will be played Tuesday.

Roberts Flashes Old Form

Robin in 4-Hitter, Wins, 6-0

CHICAGO, July 29 (UP)—Robin Roberts limited the Chicago Cubs to four hits today to pitch the Philadelphia Phillies to a 6-0 triumph for his first shutout of the season and his first victory in Chicago since July 18, 1956.

Roberts, scoring his eighth win against 13 defeats, walked only three batters and struck out six.

It was the second straight victory by Roberts, who last week beat Milwaukee to end a personal seven-game losing streak. It also was the Phillies' third shutout of the season over the Cubs and their 13th win in 18 games with Chicago.

Inside-the-Park HR

Roberts had plenty of batting support. Two singles and a sacrifice fly produced a run in the first inning, and in the second Joe Lonnett drove the ball to the left field corner for an inside-the-park home run.

A walk, two singles and a sacrifice fly scored two runs in the sixth, and Roberts' double, a walk and two singles added two more in the seventh.

Don Elston, suffering his fourth loss, was lifted for a pinch-hitter in the sixth and Dick Littlefield and Turk Lown finished.

Hilltops Win On Extra Bases

An extra-base hit attack which saw the Hilltops clout six out of 11 safe blows for extra-bases provided the impetus for a 10-3 triumph over the White Sox in Prep League action yesterday.

Six runs in the first inning were actually enough to win the game as Hilltop hurler John Fayak, three-hitted the Sox, fanning six and walking a lone number.

Big blow for the winners was Ken Bronson's homer over the centerfield fence at Ninth Street Park in the sixth inning. Although Fayak's three doubles were enough to pace any club, Damon Reed checked in with a triple as did Ray Kolich of the Sox who also had a double. Charles Bill of the winners also contributed a double in the "extra-base circus".

The victory put the Toppers at 11-4 compared to the first-place Hawks' 10-3.

There are no games today due to the picnic but tomorrow the Rockets test the Blackhawks.

Jensen Spoils Kerby's Strategy, Wins for Sox, 6-2

BOSTON, July 29 (UP)—Jackie Jensen ruined some questionable strategy by Cleveland Manager Kerby Farrell when his bases loaded single scored two runs in the seventh inning to sew up a 6-2 Boston Red Sox victory over the Indians today.

Repeat Gamble Fails

With Boston leading 4-2 and men on first and second with one out, Farrell gambled on giving Ted Williams an intentional walk — a league leading total of 23 now—to load the bases. Jensen promptly rifled a clean single to left off starter and loser Mike Garcia for the pair of insurance runs. Farrell tried thethe same stategy yesterday but escaped unharmed when Jensen rapped into an inning-ending double play.

Williams scored twice and had a single and double in three official trips to boost his league-leading batting average to .379. He tallied Boston's tying run in the fourth after Vic Wertz' 15th homer and he scored again in the sixth when Boston pushed across the tie breaking runs.

Right-handed Tom Brewer was in two or three jams as he pitched his 13th complete game but he had enough in the clutches, striking out nine, to record his 13th triumph against eight losses. The victory enabled the third-place Red Sox to take the series, 3-1 and drop the Indians into fifth place.

The loss was Garcia's seventh against four wins and his third without a win against Boston this season. The Indians scored their first run in the second on three successive singles and had the bases loaded with none out, but let Brewer get off the hook when Jim Hegan fanned and Garcia hit into a double play.

The Indians had two base runners with one away in the fifth, but Al Smith and Gene Woodling failed to deliver and in the eighth, Roger Maris was called out on strikes leaving three men stranded.

Ted Lepcio got the first of Boston's 12 hits when he smacked his seventh home run over the left field wall. Williams' single off Garcia's glove, a double by Norm Zauchin, and a run-scoring single by Billy Consolo gave Boston its two sixth inning runs.

Sox Minors Win; 1st Place Tie

Thanks to the White Sox, the Pirates of the local Little League Minors were tied for first place today following a 15-6 Sox win over the former first place-holder Braves, 15-6, in yesterday's action.

It was the pitching of Ray Roskos who allowed only five hits although he had control trouble in walking eight batters. He fanned six and the hitting of Major Corley, Andrew Temoshenka and Larry Williams which provided victory for the Sox over Braves hurler Ronald Junk.

Temoshenka clouted two triples, Corley two doubles, while Williams cracked out three singles in three trips to the plate. Roskos clubbed a triple to aid his own cause while Annonio was good for a double. Richard Albert and James Dzyak with a double and triple were top hitters for the losers.

The Braves and Pirates now stand at 9-5 each while the Sox aren't far behind with 8-7. No game today due to the Community picnic but tomorrow it'll be the Yankees against the Pirates.

NEW YORK, July 29 (UP)—Carl Braun, who has led the New York Knickerbockers in scoring for seven seasons, today signed his contract for the 1957-58 National Basketball Association season.

Braun, a former Colgate star, dropped to third among the Knicks scorers last season but led the team in assists with 256. He is the second holdover to sign for the coming season, following forward Ken Sears.

Courtney To Attempt New 800-Meter Mark

HELSINKI, Finland, July 29 (UP)— America's Tom Courtney, Olympic 800-meter champion, will make an attempt to break the world record in his specialty over the fast Olympic Stadium track here tomorrow.

The present mark of 145.7 was set by Roger Moens of Belgium Aug. 3, 1955. Last week on a slow, wet track in Sweden, Courtney, who may retire from active competition at the end of this season, line in a time of 1:46.0 — only three-tenths of a second outside of Moens' standard.

Two speed Finns, Urpo Vaharanta and Erkki Taimisto, are entered against Courtney. They are fast enough to push him to a world record.

Big Ten Seen Suspending More Grid Coaches After Dickens Move

By ED SAINSBURY

CHICAGO, July 29 (UP)— Indiana's new football coach, Phil Dickens, was the first victim of the Big Ten's new rule on aid to athletes, but he probably won't be the last.

Dickens was suspended for one year, in the most severe penalty on an individual ever levied by the conference, for offering "various and several" prospective athletes aid which included "a sum of money each month" regardless of their need.

"Other investigations are going on," a Big Ten spokesman said, "and if there is any meat in them, as there was in the Indiana case, penalties will result."

The penalty on Indiana was invoked by the faculty representatives and Indiana was permitted to "show cause" why it should not be suspended from membership in the conference for retaining Dickens on its payroll.

The conference rule specifies that any coach violating the new aid regulation, which requires each student to pay his own way insofar as family finances permit, will be discharged from his job or the school must be suspended.

Take Quick Action

Commissioner Kenneth L. "Tug" Wilson said that the more stringent penalty was not invoked because the penalty imposed demonstrated the integrity of the rules. Also, he said, Indiana took quick "corective measures."

The conference spokesman said that reaction to the penalty has been "good," although there were evidences in Bloomington, Ind. site of the university that it was not received with acclaim.

"A lot of people thought that the new rule was just a paper showing," one faculty representative said, "and that it wouldn't be enforced. That Dickens is just getting a year's paid vacation. If any other coach wants a year's paid vacation, all he has to do is step up."

Under the penalty, Dickens will perform no duties or functions of a football coach and particularly shall not contact any prospective athletes. His coaching staff, which was with him at Wyoming before he took the Indiana job, will direct the team this fall.

Frank Allen, Indiana athletic director, said Dickens will be assigned "some other duties, such as speaker for the alumni association."

Sorry It Happened

"We've known for two months that something was coming, what with the various questionings and investigations," Allen said. "We knew if we were guilty, suspension could be one of the punishments. I'm sorry it happened, of course, but I have confidence in the Big Ten and am sure they made the decision they thought was just."

As soon as possible, Allen said, he will recommend the name of an assistant coach to act as "chairman," thus taking over Dickens' duties as head coach.

Dikens, 42, took the Iidiana job Jan. 19 and immediately began an intensive recruiting campaign, particularly in Indiana, Ohio and Pennsylvania. There was no indication whether the initial report of violations was made by another conference school or an individual. But because several athletes were involved, and presumably some were sought by other conference members, numerous complaints could have been made.

Sportsmen's Corner—

Ruffed Grouse Study Negative and Positive

Reflecting on the state's grouse population in the last two years, Dr. Ward M. Sharp, Leader of The Pennsylvania Cooperative Wildlife Research Unit, concludes: "The past year presented happenings within the grouse population that produced both negative and positive results. Results on the negative side were manifest in a crash within the population, and those on the positive side were that the population decline was so spectacular as to provide valuable information on probably the chief factor causing population crashes in grouse populations.

"I was fortunate in having 14 grouse nests under observation in 1956. This number in one season was — within itself — indicative of a good nesting year. Having this basis to work from it was easier to follow the crash in the brood population.

"By July, broods were very scarce. This is the month of the year when broods are most readily observed. The Barrens grouse study area showed one of the smallest prospects for young grouse since brood studied were started in 1946. On other years low brood counts were noted in 1946 wheh only 6 broods and in 1948 when only 8 broods were located. By way of contrast this same area supported 24 broods in 1955.

"The fall population of ruffed grouse was very spotty, being noticeably below normal on most areas. The fall population represented the carry-over of old birds plus the light brood crop of 1956. Census data for December indicated a satisfactory carry-over of breeding stock. If 1957 is a good year, like 1955, the population should bounce back to normal levels. But range conditions were generally unfavorable for over-wintering grouse populations. And, this in itself, could be a factor having an adverse effect on the 1957 nesting season."

Ducks Opportunists—

Two years ago, local Boy Scouts assisted in erecting wood duck nesting homes made of nail kegs over the Union City Reservoir.

Says an Erie County Game Protector, Elmer Simpson, "Quite a few wood ducks have hatched young in the converted kegs. But this spring two hooded mergansers, also tree cavity nesters, used the kegs and hatched broods."

Ferocious Grouse—

Says Game Protector Frederick Weigelt, Wayne County, "While inspecting a timber cutting in Scott Township in June, I surprised a grouse in the act of dusting on a dirt road, with all her brood in attendance. Seeing me the mother gave the alarm. In its haste to find cover one of the young birds became entangled in vines. The mother went into her crippled bird act to draw me away. When I released the 'pepp' the scene changed. The old bird turned to direct assault. Her charges against my leg stopped only after I placed the youngster on the ground and retreated a considerable distance."

McClain Clan in Annual Reunion at Coopers Rocks

The McClain Clan gathered for the 12th annual reunion at Coopers Rocks, West Va., on Sunday. There was a large attendance of the descendants of the late Madison and Mary McClain present from West Virginia, Ohio and Pennsylvania.

A picnic dinner was served at one o'clock. Invocation was given by the oldest member of the clan president, Harry S. Robinson, of Belle Vernon. After dinner the vice president, Robert Tabron, of Morgantown, W. Va., conducted the business session in the absence of the president, Hiram Ostrander, of Donora.

A complete family tree and history of the clan has been compiled by the historian, Mrs. Jennie Bowen, 817 McKean Ave, Charleroi.

Yellow Cab in Pittsburgh to Raise Some Fares

HARRISBURG (UP)—The Yellow Cab Co., Pittsburgh, will raise fares 25 cents on trips from the Greater Pittsburgh Airport to metropolitan Pittsburgh Aug. 1.

The Public Utility Commission granted the fare increase after the cab firm signed a new contract with Allegheny County stipulating a 25 cent commission to the county on all trips originating from the airport.

There will be no extra charge for passengers taken to the airport from downtown Pittsburgh. The existing fare is $4 for the trip.

The new contract extends from Aug. 1 to Dec. 31, 1961. Under the old contract, the firm paid the county a 5 per cent fee on its gross revenue from trips originating at the airport. The company said under the percentage agreement it paid the county $16,000 last year, although money was lost because more passengers wanted rides downtown than to the airport.

Yellow Cab added it was required to dispatch empty cabs to the airfield 25,000 times last year and that thousands of non-revenue miles were recorded on those trips.

The firm said based upon 1956 traffic figures the extra 25 cents was expected to produce about $15,000 annually.

Named President

UNIVERSITY PARK, Pa (UP)—The American Country Life Association has named Dr. Roy C. Buck, associate professor of rural sociology at Pennsylvania State University, as national president, it was announced today.

Train Conductor Held by Police

YOUNGSTOWN, Ohio (UP)—George Reiser, New Castle, Pa., a Pennsylvania Railroad conductor, was to appear before Mayor Harold Milligan of nearby Struthers, Ohio, today to answer charges of blocking traffic for 20 minutes with his train.

Police claimed Reiser violated a city ordinance against trains blocking crossings more than seven minutes.

The incident occurred at a crossing in the center of town.

In Athens and Rome there were merchants who dealt in foreign bills and received deposits. They were the bankers of the day.

3 Memorials

In loving memory of our dear husband, father and grandfather, Frank Belan, Sr. who died six years ago today, July 30, 1951.
Today our hearts are heavy,
Our thoughts are all of thee.
Oh! How we miss you, father, dear,
No one but God can see.
Some say time heals an aching heart,
But, no, it isn't true,
For six long years have passed, dear father,
And our hearts still ache for you.
Sadly missed by Wife, Children and Grandchildren

In loving memory of our dear father and grandfather, Frank Belan, Sr., who died six years ago today, July 30, 1951.
We live today with memories
Of days when you were here.
We miss you still and always will
Throughout each day and year.
At night when all is silent
And sleep forsakes our eyes,
Our thoughts are in that lonely grave
Where our dear loved one lies.
Sadly missed by son, Frank, Daughter-in-law and Grandchildren

In loving memory of our dear husband and father, Stephen Macura, who died four years ago today, July 30, 1953.
The rolling stream of life rolls on,
And still the vacant chair
Recalls the love, the voice, the smile,
Of the one who once sat here;
It is lonesome here without you,
And sad the weary way;
For life is not the same to us,
Since you were called away.
Sadly missed by wife and children, Mrs. Mary Macura and Family

In loving memory of our dear son and brother, John Kampo, who died one year ago today, July 30, 1956.
You are not forgotten, loved one,
Nor will you ever be
As long as life and memory last
We shall remember thee.
We miss you now, our hearts are sore,
As time goes on we miss you more,
Your loving smile, your gentle face,
No one can fill your vacant place.
Sadly missed by Mother, Dad, Brothers and Sister

PUC Hearings On Railroad Fare Increases

HARRISBURG (UP)—The Public Utility Commission will hold hearings in Philadelphia Aug. 13-14 on an average 15 per cent commuter fare increase proposed by the Pennsylvania Railroad, the Reading Co. and the Pittsburgh and Lake Erie Railroad.

The hearings will be held in the Harrison Building, starting at 10 a.m. edt.

The proposed increase was filed to become effective June 16, but suspended by the PUC until next Jan. 16 pending completion of an investigation and hearings.

The boost would affect commuters chiefly in the Philadelphia, Pittsburgh and Harrisburg areas. The suspended schedules, with some exceptions below maximum figures, would generally provide a $3 increase in the unrestricted monthly (base rate) tickets.

Other general increases sought include $2.70 for the restricted monthly ticket; $2.25 for the school tickets; $1.80 for the 24-trip tickets; $1.50 for the 20-trip ticket, and 75-cents in the weekly ticket rate.

The railroads said the fare hike was needed to partially offset heavy passenger losses.

County Fair Opens Aug. 20

The third annual Westmoreland County Agricultural, Industrial and Commercial Fair will be held Aug. 20 through Aug. 24 at the new fair grounds in Mt. Pleasant Twp.

C. Homer Miller, president of the Fair Association, said that the site is located at the junction of the Mt. Pleasant and Pleasant Unity roads just beyond Mutual.

There will be ample exhibit space for dairy cattle, flowers, vegetables, fruits and home economic displays.

Farm products may also be exhibited by groups.

BETHLEHEM, Pa. (UP) —The Lehigh Coal and Navigation Co. today reported net income for the six-month period ended June 30 as $1,383,450 as compared with $1,438,433 for the same period last year.

County 4-H Youths To Attend Annual Club Week at Penn State

A delegation of 31 Westmoreland County boys and girls will take part in the 33rd annual 4-H Club Week August 12-15 at Pennsylvania State University.

More than 1,000 youngsters from through the state will attend. They will be housed on the Penn State campus.

Combining instruction entertainment and recreation, the program is designed to give the 4-H delegates a wide range of experiences that will help them in their club work when they return home.

To be eligible to attend Club Week, 4-H members must have one year of completed club work and be over 14 years of age by Aug. 1, 1957.

Because of Pennsylvania's large enrollment — more than 33,000 boys and girls — selection of delegates is on a quota basis. The quota for Westmoreland county is 14 from agricultural clubs, and 17 from home economics clubs.

The dairy judging team and the livestock judging team was picked as a result of competition between members of 4-H Clubs of this county and of southwestern counties.

Dairy judging eliminations were held Thursday, July 18 in this county.

On Wednesday, June 19 members of the Baby Beef Clubs who were interested in trying for the livestock judging team traveled to Butler County for an all day session of judging.

The poultry judging team was picked as the result of judging at the Fredrick Slezack poultry farm near New Alexandria on Wednesday, July 10.

Members of dairy judging team are; Glenn Fox, New Stanton, James Kelly, Middletown; Nelson Lash, West Newton.

The Livestock judging team is: Merrill Dominick, Greensburg; Joe Gardner, Adamsburg; Donald Helman, Jeannette; and Allen Kintigh as an individual livestock judge.

Going for the poultry team will be Leonard and Alice McChesney, Blairsville; and Robert McQuaide of Ruffsdale.

There will also be demonstrations on livestock feeding, by Joe Gardner and Don Helman, Tractor Maintenance by Wendell Pass, Export, and William Garvis, Trafford. The final demonstration will be put on by John Sivis, Greensburg, and James Rugh, Greensburg on an all weather poultry waterer.

Charleroi Man Seeking Damages

William Scott, of Charleroi, has filed a damage suit in Westmoreland County Court against a Monessen man as a result of an auto accident.

The suit names Edwin Levy, of Monessen, as the defendant.

Scott claims damages of $173.86 resulted to his auto on Oct. 5, 1955 when Levy's car backed into his vehicle in Monessen.

Defends Rock 'n' Roll Music on Video Show

(William Ewald is on vacation. Today's guest writer is Alan Freed, rock 'n' roll disc jockey and emcee of ABC-TV's "The Big Beat".)

By ALAN FREED

NEW YORK (UP) — When people ask me what rock 'n' roll is doing to the younger generation, I always say, "It's making them happy!" It's making me happy, too.

Because I know that their music—and make no mistake about it, the kids discovered rock 'n' roll and it belongs to them—is giving them a powerful interest that is working against juvenile delinquency.

Interested In Youngsters

Sure, I'm making my living in rock 'n' roll music. But my wife and I have two boys and two girls and naturally, we're interested as any parents in the welfare of youngsters.

Unfortunately, many parents don't understand the importance of rock 'n' roll to their teen-age offspring. The kids feel that it's new, it's theirs and something they understand and enjoy. A healthy, wholesome way to get rid of excess energy. The kids are just as much a part of it as the performers.

You'll see what I mean when you tune in "The Big Beat" on ABC-TV. Rock 'n' roll audiences, loving the music, are really part of the show.

In looking back to my own teen-age years, I recall how enthralled I was with swing, with Benny Goodman, Glenn Miller and Harry James. Maybe today's teen-agers are more enthusiastic about their music. Maybe it seems that way because I'm older now. But obviously, every generation has its own music.

No Immoral Music

I sincerely believe that no music is immoral. When a youngster starts out listening to music, any sort of music, he is in effect whetting his appetite for culture, leading him, as some surveys indicate, to an interest in opera and the classics.

What will happen when today's teen-agers become the older generation?

Probably history will repeat itself and there'll be a new music form to replace rock 'n' roll, just as swing was replaced.

But rock 'n' roll, has become so strong I doubt if it'll ever completely pass away. Like the classic swing tunes, the best of rock 'n' roll will become part of our musical heritage.

And the kids will be responsible for it.

Chicago Experiment With Polio Vaccine

By H. N. BUNDESEN, M. D.

Administering thousands of doses of Salk anti-polio vaccine in the face of a constantly increasing number of infantile paralysis cases might be deemed a calculated risk. However, we felt the calculated risk was less than the risk involved in not making available the protection afforded by the Salk vaccine.

We new that when we ordered mass inoculations last summer as Chicago's polio cases soared toward a near record incidence rate.

In fact, the Illinois Department of Public Health had issued a directive dated May 25, 1956, only about a month before our upsurge began, which stated: "Inoculations with poliomyelitis vaccine can be continued into the summer until there is an increased prevalance of the disease."

By the end of June we knew we had an "increased prevalance of the disaese." We also knew that about the only weapon we had to combat it was the Salk vaccine. So we made preparations for mass inoculations.

On July 9 the state health department issued a second directive: "Because of the high rate of poliomyelitis this early in 1956, all physicians are urged to continue vaccinating as many children as possible."

And vaccinate them we did.

Everyone cooperated — doctors, nurses; hospitals, police, newspapers, radio, television, all the local authorities. The only people we had difficulty with were the parents of the youngsters who probably needed the vaccine most.

Understandably some of them were afraid that the vaccine would actually trigger an attack of polio.

Some of you parents may still be worried about this. This is one of the reasons I decided to make this report at this particular time, the peak of the polio season.

Western Alliance at Crucial Fork

By CHARLES CORDDRY

PARIS (UP)—The Western alliance is at a crucial fork in the road in its quest for security against Russian military aggression.

Mounting defense costs and confidence in the war-deterring power of nuclear bombs have kicked off a "great debate" on the need for strong ground forces on the Central European front near the Iron Curtain.

Political leaders may have to decide soon whether to move toward even heavier reliance on air-atomic power to thwart Russian designs, or to go on building up the ground force shield as vital additional insurance.

Changes in North Atlantic Treaty Organization defense plans seem inevitable to some authorities. But they say it is too early to speculate on the effects on the 7th U.S. Army, a 125,000-man force operating in West Germany at an annual cost of $1,200,000,000, and comprising the largest single national force in NATO.

Needs 30 Divisions

Ironically, Gen. Lauris Norstad, first air officer to be supreme Allied commander in Europe, has become the most articulate and persistent advocate of the ground force shield. He says 30 divisions are needed urgently in the Central European region, but at the behest of his political chiefs he is having a new study made for consideration of the NATO Council next fall.

The current debate was stirred up in the wake of Britain's defense policy overhaul announced last April. The plan called for a 13,000-man cut in the British army of the Rhine, reducing it to 64,000.

The British argued they were bearing more than their share of the NATO ground force load and, anyway, were able to make an atomic contribution which no other country but the United States could do.

Norstad has been working constantly to counteract any snowballing effect the British cuts might have among European NATO members. The cuts were forecast 13 months ago when Sir Anthony Eden then prime minister, said it was time to take account of "the changed circumstances which the deterrent power of the hydrogen bomb has brought about."

There has been an on-again, off-again debate ever since on whether a thin line of ground forces would be enough in Europe, a sort of "trip wire" to sound the warning if Russia moved.

Reject "arguments"

Norstad, and the international staff at his 15-nation headquarters here, reject such arguments These are their reasons for demanding a stout ground force shield:

—It must provide convincing evidence that NATO will resist aggression.

—It must be strong enough to force aggressors to concentrate and telegraph their punch, if they dare attack.

—It is needed to protect continental air bases from which retaliatory forces would fly.

—It must hold off attackers at Western Europe's frontiers for the limited time it would take retaliatory air forces to crush Russia and end war. Europeans have experienced one occupation and liberation in the last 17 years and do not want another.

—With sea and air elements, the shield must block Baltic and Black Sea exits to Soviet undersea forces.

—The shield stands as a deterrent in a very special way, a way that has meaning for Americans at home as much as for Germans at the front line. Norstad argues there is little or no chance of Russia provoking a local incident on the Iron Curtain if it is visibly defended by strong ground forces.

New Sewage Disposal Plant About Ready

A new sewage disposal system will go into operation in Perryopolis in about 60 days, borough officials disclosed today.

Burgess Russell Blair said that workers are now putting the finishing touches to the system.

However Blair cautioned against property owners tapping into the sewage lines until notified they may do so. He reported several recent violations.

Blair said violators are liable to a fine, although no penalties have been assessed as yet.

The sewage system is being financed largely through the money left to the borough by the late Mary Fuller Frazier, a former Perryopolis resident.

The borough plans next to extend the water system so as to include families who now depend on wells for their water supply.

This project will not begin until the sewage plant is completed.
